BUCCI BAILEY & JAVINS EXPANDS PRACTICE INTO SUMMERVILLE

Charleston, W.Va.—The law firm of Bucci Bailey & Javins LC announced today the expansion of their law practice from the acquisition of the Linda Garrett Law Firm in Summersville, West Virginia. Tim Bailey, a partner with the firm, said the community of Summersville can still expect the same professional staff and dedication to each case as they have received in the past.

“We are excited about the new opportunity to expand our service to the Summersville area,” Bailey said. “Phil Amick, a native of Nicholas County, will manage our Summersville office and Paula Herndon and Paula Brown will join him in working hard everyday on behalf of our clients.”

Linda Garrett, formally of the Linda Garrett Law Firm now serves as an Assistant Prosecutor for Nicholas County.

Bucci Bailey & Javins LC has more than 35 years combined experience representing miners, truck drivers, loggers, construction workers and injury victims throughout West Virginia. Bucci, Bailey & Javins LC has represented clients in some of the state’s most serious accidents including Sago, Aracoma, Ghent and Willow Island.

The law firm has offices in Charleston, Logan and now Summersville, West Virginia.
